"A GOOD PHYSICIAN TREATS THE DISEASE, A GREAT PHYSICIAN TREATS THE PATIENT WITH THE DISEASE"

Medical negligence is an unpardonable sin

It is a principle recognized by us, as well as by other legal systems, that ignorance of the law is no excuse for violating it. It is the duty of every man to know that part of it, which concerns him.

A doctor, in particular, is conclusively presumed to know the law and is dealt with as if he knows it. In the matter of professional liability, the medical profession differs from other occupations for the reason that the former operates in spheres where success cannot be achieved in every case and very often, success or failure depends upon factors beyond a medical man's control.

Due to the increasing awareness of the rights of a patient in present day society, a medical man has become more vulnerable to being sued by a litigation suit of any kind, civil or criminal. The basis of a medical negligence suit is still alien to the majority of the practicing doctors in our country. This program is intended to provide an insight about the prevailing issues in our profession, which if neglected, may lead to a medical catastrophe.
