ACTIVITIES TO IMPROVE / STRENGTHEN LEARNING LEVELS

Criteria to Identify Slow and Advanced Learners

The students in the college are identified based on their academic performance participation and involvement in clinical activities and active involvement in subjects, paper vice practical and clinical strategies. The advanced and slow learners in each subject are identified by their individual performance and ability to score marks in internal assessment exams.

Assessment Methods

In clinics and classrooms, the students are identified based on their learning capabilities and practical skills.

Provision for Additional Learning with reference material are given by providing students with review articles, journals and text books.

Assignment Preparation and Submission

The students are given specific topics to analyze and prepare clinically oriented papers which are graded based on their quality and importance in their specific field.

Student Seminars

The students are asked to prepare seminars in given topics by providing additional clinical photographs and recent literature. The source of the seminars are from journals, articles from the library. Seminars are made either written or oral presentation forms and are graded like wise.

Student Participation

Students are motivated to participate in quiz, competitive exams, debates and problem solving mental exams.

Performance Enhancements for Slow Learners

The mentors are assigned duty to identify the slow learners and increase their performance which are implemented in the respective departments and are documented in the mentor log book or diaries which is maintained by the allotted mentor. The mentors are also advised to constantly interact with the mentees and their performance graph to be recorded. The outcome of such mentorship supports the slow learners to join the main stream if students. This helps the slow learning students in their career and overall learning.
